Dear Authors, Dear Colleagues, Dear Guests and Dear Students,

We are pleased and honored to welcome you all to the International Conference on Eurasian Economies 2010 that was initiated by the Economics Department of Beykent University with an aspiration to make it a traditional annual international academic event. We hope that the International Conference on Eurasian Economies will provide a closer link between Eurasia and the world of science.

At a significant geographic and cultural point on which many cultures and ideas intersected throughout history, Turkey today carries out the distinctive mission of constituting a bridge between Asian and European countries in the era of globalization. By organizing this first conference in Istanbul, where Asia and Europe meet at the Bosphorus, we aimed at providing a forum for academicians and decision-makers from all over the world to discuss and develop policies concerning current and future economic and social issues of Eurasia. We also hoped that the importance of Turkey will be highlighted in the economic development process of Eurasia under globalization. In the long run, we believe that effective policies will be developed and proposed via forthcoming conferences to be held in different countries in collaboration with different universities and various institutions.

The topics of the International Conference on Eurasian Economies 2010 cover a wide variety of general subjects in light of economic and social policies that have immediate impacts on the region such as: Economic ties of Eurasian countries with other countries or country groups in today's global world, including trade, tourism and transportation; challenges and strategies regarding economic growth and development in Eurasian economies taking into account energy and natural resources management; policies targeting at development and level of regulation vs. deregulation of financial institutions and markets based on the experience of the 2008 global financial crisis.

Following our call for papers to the International Conference on Eurasian Economies 2010 worldwide at universities, institutions and academic research networks focusing on Eurasian economies, we received over 120 abstracts from 30 different countries, of which 67 are presented according to the program in this booklet. We would hereby like to thank all of you who have contributed and will contribute to the conference. We wish that all of these valuable studies and following discussions will provide significant benefits to future research on Eurasian economies.
